EXTRA! L.A. SEX SCANDAL

Redman Caught in Vanilla Sex-Scandal
Sherri De Lange, LA correspondent

Paracentury was rocked today when Executive Producer Marc Redman was caught in a vanilla sex scandal in one of LA's middle-class districts.

Redman was reported entering the home of a matronly looking woman who was in the middle of cooking dinner when the high-powered producer arrived. She is said to have screeched, "Where have you been? Don't you know that you were supposed to be here half an hour ago?" as Redman slinked inside and poured himself a scotch. Insider sources say that they then had a dinner of meatloaf and mashed potatoes before Redman was informed that he, "never does any of the work around here" while his highly-paid courtesan washed the dishes and left him alone while he watched the news.

How could a man this subversive, do something so boring?

When they retreated to the bedroom, Redman was told that she had a headache but was then grudgingly allowed 15 minutes of intercourse before the woman yawned and turned her back on him.

Redman has been a long-time colleague of Michelle Turner, famous even among the decadent Paracentury executives for her well-trained girls, all graduates of the well-known Holland House. Turner has a stable of willing females which she keeps without names and with every possible kink in place. Redman is known to have full use of this stable which makes his illicit nocturnal wanderings even more remarkable.

"I never would have thought it of Marc," says a Paracentury insider, "I mean, we knew he had to be a bit perverted to work so long with Turner, but this!" He shakes his head in horror and disgust before finding the means to speak, "This was just more than any of us could have ever expected!"

Redman himself was not available for comment.

Etiquette Guide for Youse Guys

by Miss Amelia P. Upperclass
Freelance Propriety Guide

Our fair city will soon be honored by many important guests from the [Mafia] Empire of New York and many other Threads. In order to make everyone feel more comfortable, it has been suggested that the standard guide to table etiquette be supplemented to add in several more areas where our local style may be unfamiliar to our guests.

- Guests should not bring before-dinner drinks to the table. This includes whole bottles as well as glasses.
- Chanting "chug! chug! chug!" while fellow guests are finishing their before-dinner drinks is frowned on.
- If a fellow guest chooses to drink water or juice instead of wine, it is impolite to call him a "pussy".
- Toasts should not be greeted with whistles, hoots, mouth noises or shouts of "Heyyyyyyy!"
- Wine will be served by the wine steward, and will not be in wicker-covered jugs on the table.
- Please address your fellow guests politely, and not with "Hey, you!" or "Yo, Rocco!" or "Say, babe, pass me the butter, huh?"
- Bodyguards should keep looming and cracking of knuckles to a minimum.
- If a guest is resting his hands below the table while not eating ("American style"), he is not "pulling a piece" or "trying something funny".
- Most eating knives are unsuitable for "shivs", so please don't palm them "just in case".
- If you choose not to eat a course, it is not necessary to explain by saying "That gives me gas!" or "It's not like Mama used to make!"
- if another guest accidentally belches, ignore it. Do not take it as an invitation to try to out-do him.
